Forgotten Books Excerpt from Missions, 1912, Vol. 3: A Baptist Monthly Magazine; Published by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, the American Baptist Home Mission Society, the American Baptist Publication Society, and the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission Society Oh, wailed another, the Little Miss Sahiba suffers great pain. The physician, with trained eyes. Watched intently the sick woman. At length the pain ceased, she grew calm, and, looking up into his face, said with a smile, Doctor, I'm better now. The physician stepped into the next room. Miss Connor, the pain is gone now, but she cannot live. You must tell her. You have been so much together in your work - you will do it so much better than I, urged the doctor. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. #### A BAPTIST MONTHLY MAGAZINE (CLASSIC REPRINT)

Forgotten Books Excerpt from Missions, 1911, Vol. 2: A Baptist Monthly Magazine Consider the modern cosmopolitanism of the Christian. He has become, generally speaking, a new man with a world vision and a world sympathy. There has come into the spirit of man the sense of universal brotherhood, a neighborly interest and sense of kinship, revolutionary in its influence upon man everywhere. The Christian obligation to serve and to save all men, regardless of race. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. #### REFERENCE GUIDE TO CHRISTIAN MISSIONARY SOCIETIES IN CHINA: FROM THE SIXTEENTH TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

FROM THE SIXTEENTH TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

Routledge This comprehensive guide will facilitate scholarly research concerning the history of Christianity in China as well as the wider Sino-Western cultural encounter. It will assist scholars in their search for material on the anthropological, educational, medical, scientific, social, political, and religious dimensions of the missionary presence in China prior to 1950. The guide contains nearly five hundred entries identifying both Roman Catholic and Protestant missionary sending agencies and related religious congregations. Each entry includes the organization's name in English, followed by its Chinese name, country of origin, and denominational affiliation. Special attention has been paid to identifying the many small, lesser-known groups that arrived in China during the early decades of the twentieth century. In addition, a special category of the as yet little-studied indigenous communities of Chinese women has also been included. Multiple indexes enhance the guide's accessibility.

SOUTHERN BAPTIST MISSIONS AND RACE, 1945-1970

University Press of Kentucky Southern Baptists had long considered themselves a missionary people, but when, after World War II, they embarked on a dramatic expansion of missionary efforts, they confronted headlong the problem of racism. Believing that racism hindered their evangelical efforts, the Convention's full-time missionaries and mission board leaders attacked racism as unchristian, thus finding themselves at odds with the pervasive racist and segregationist ideologies that dominated the South. This progressive view of race stressed the biblical unity of humanity, encompassing all races and transcending specific ethnic divisions. In All According to God's Plan, Alan Scot Willis explores these beliefs and the chasm they created within the Convention. He shows how, in the post-World War II era, the most respected members of the Southern Baptists Convention publicly challenged the most dearly held ideologies of the white South.

A HISTORY OF RELIGION WEST OF THE SOUTHERN APPALACHIANS TO 1861

University Press of Kentucky Religion is viewed here as the great cultural force which introduced and preserved civilization in the era of westward expansion from 1776 to the eve of the Civil War. In this first major study of religion in the South, Mr. Posey surveys the work of the seven chief denominations -- Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ, Cumberland Presbyterian, Roman Catholic, and Protestant Episcopal -- as they developed in the frontier region that now comprises the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas, and Missouri. The great challenges faced by the churches, Mr. Posey believes, were, first, the barbarism continually threatening a people isolated in a savage wilderness and, second, the materialism likely to engross minds preoccupied with the hard necessities of frontier survival. Many frontiersmen who had wandered across the mountains to escape the trammels and restrictions of an established society were distrustful of traditional religion, and some forgot their inherited beliefs entirely. To overcome these attitudes demanded new approaches. As organizations the churches faced great obstacles in attempting to minister to the folk on the moving frontier. One early answer was the camp meeting, and many of its features -- an emphasis upon fervid emotion and individualism and the active participation and use of untrained people in religious services -- continued as dominant elements in frontier religion. Indeed, those churches flexible enough to make use of these appeals were the most successful in spreading their beliefs. But inherent in the emotion and individualism was the danger of fragmentation, a danger most tragically evident when the slavery controversy split most southern denominations from their northern brethren. In education the churches fared better; even those that were at first skeptical of its benefits were by the time of the Civil War actively engaged in its support. But overall, the southern churches were hampered by too little money for the support of priests and preachers, too little communication between isolated congregations, and too little regard for service to the community. At the center of the churches' work -- the care of congregations, the missions to the Indians and the Negroes, and the founding of educational institutions -- were the frontier ministers. Mr. Posey pictures these men -- stern and hard but full of zeal -- as performing a stupendous task in their efforts to build and maintain spiritual life on the southern frontier.
