SUPREME LEADER, DENG XIAO PING

*Dei Deng Xiaoping is by his own merit and by what is known in Chinese popular culture as the "Divine Mandate" or natural might, the Father of Modern and Economically Developed China. Although not an official title, the term Supreme Leader is applied to the Maximum Leader of the Chinese Communist Party (CCP), and of the Government of the People's Republic of China (PRC) and is ultimately an informal term to refer to the most prominent political leader in China in each era. Deng Xiao Ping was never President of the People's Republic of China as many outsiders think, but rather his political leadership surpassed the presidents of his time, both during his term as Chairman of the National Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference (8 March 1978 - 17 June 1983), Chairman of the Central Military Commission (28 June 1981 - 9 November 1989), and Chairman of the Central Consultative Commission (13 September 1982 - 2 November 1987), respectively. The Central Advisory Commission (in CAC) was an organ of the Communist Party of China during the era of Deng Xiaoping's supreme leadership, and was a select group of senior Party members, which in practice had more authority than the then Chinese President Li Xiannian's own executive, President of China from 1983 to 1988. The socio-political evolution and industrial development of the People's Republic of China after Mao Zedong (December 26, 1893 - September 9, 1976) was greatly influenced by the vision of a group of veteran leaders of the Communist Party of China - known as the Eight Elders or the Eight Immortals - of whom the leadership of Deng Xiao Ping stands out historically and politically. This book is a small glimpse into an era of transformation and political transition of the country that a few decades later has become the world's leading economy, and a feared and respected adversary in all nations. This is the Story of One of the Good Guys, Deng Xiao Ping. Deng Xiaoping's story and career is an example of all that can be achieved with tenacity, persistence, honesty and nationalism. ## Portrait of a Great Military Leader

Schiffer Pub Limited This new book covers the military career of one of China's most influential leaders, with nearly all of the photos published here for the first time in the West. From the original uprising through the founding of the Peoples Republic of China, Deng Xiao Ping was in key military positions at every turn during the communists dramatic struggle to power. He helped found the Seventh and Eighth Armies of the Red Army, established and led the Anti-Japanese Base Areas in Northern China, marched the Long March, and fought head on with the Kuomintang government troops after the Japanese were driven out. The country under Communist control, Deng headed to the southwest to consolidate outlying regions. He returned to help put together a permanent Red Army and a plan for the nation's defense, eventually becoming Commander of the Three Armed Services.

The Nine Days That Deng Xiao-Ping Visited USA In 1979

Createspace Independent Publishing Platform Deng Xiao-ping (or also known as "Teng Hsiao-ping" in earlier version of translation) visited the United States as Vice-Premier of the State Council of the People's Republic of China, from January 28 to February 5, 1979, nine days in all, marking a major event in the history of Sino-U.S. relations. This visit was in the wake of the thaw achieved between China and the United States, by Mao Ze-dong and Zhou En-lai in the early 1970s, with a vision of inaugurating China's future international influence and paving the way for China's gradual reform and opening up to the western world, alongside the implementation of its modernization program. At that time, Hanson Chan worked with China Daily News in New York as deputy editor-in-chief and also in charge of news reporting when Deng Xiao-ping visited the United States, so he was naturally assigned and duty-bound to cover the entire event. There was something very special regarding his reporting besides just being a news reporter, as he mentioned in the "Forward" of this book: "Most notably, during my reporting in Atlanta, I met a senior adviser of the Chinese delegation by chance at the shopping area within the big hotel they stayed.."; he then said that after a short chat and in addition to both exchanged names, he boldly made a suggestion by pointing out that the four cities being selected and arranged for Vice-Premier Deng to visit did not include New York and San Francisco -- which happened to be the two places with the largest number of Chinese Americans and overseas Chinese among all Chinatown settlements in USA; therefore, he wondered, would they consider paying tribute to and encouraging the majority of overseas Chinese in America in the form of writing an inscription (by Vice-Premier Deng) and let it be published through the newspaper he worked with? As a result, he was really overjoyed to receive Deng Xiao-ping's historic handwritten inscription on a piece of white paper at the Seattle airport on February 5, shortly before the Vice-Premier ended his visit. And the inscription reads: "May you make greater efforts to enhance the friendship between the Chinese and American peoples. May you make more contributions to the socialist construction of the motherland, and to the great cause of reunification of the motherland, with Taiwan returned to the motherland. -- Deng Xiao-ping." Having learned what happened, a reporter from Xinhua News Agency accompanying with the delegation immediately issued the news of that particular event, which "I took back to my newspaper along with Deng's inscription. Both were published on the front page on February 7, 1979." Then, 30 years later, in early October 2010, Hanson Chan met with Vice-President Mr. Yao Lishi of Xinhua Publishing House in Beijing, and was encouraged to write a book detailing all the activities in the itinerary of Deng Xiao-ping's nine-day visit to the United States, and to include and describe as vividly as possible the wider and the little-known insider stories throughout the entire trip. He accepted the challenge. This was how the contents of this book which in Chinese originally entitled "The Nine Days That Deng Xiao-ping Visited the United States" was initially first written in Chinese and published in the mainland China, and for the following five years, it strictly circulated within the mainland of China alone, from 2011 to 2016. Now, for this newly revised and republished Simplified Chinese edition, it is available in USA and for readers who live beyond.

A Booklet of the 137-Year Struggle - Opium War to Deng Xiao-Ping

Xlibris Us The several timelines and short discussions in each page in this book make it easy for one to glance over and detect the cause-and-effects between successive events in recent China, that is: in the turbulent years from Opium War to Deng Xiao-Ping. An observation is: China has been deteriorating by itself for 40 years before the Opium war with Britain in 1839; then it took another 137 years including two internal revolutions, several more wars against external aggressors (especially the newly industrialized Japan), plus a devastating cultural revolution - before China could regain its footing and rejoined the world as equals. The politics in foreign countries relating to events in China are pointed out.

Pioneers of Modern China

Understanding the Inscrutable Chinese

World Scientific Amongst the Chinese exists great cultural variety and diversity. The Cantonese care more for profit than face and are good businessmen, whereas Fujian R[un] are frank, blunt and outspoken but daring and generous. Beijing R[un] are more aristocratic and well-mannered, having stayed in a city ruled by emperors of different dynasties. Shanghai R[un] are more enterprising, adventurous and materialistic but less aristocratic, having been at the center of pre-war gangsterism. Hainan R[un] are straightforward, blunt and stubborn. Hunan R[un] are more warlike and have produced more marshals and generals than any other province. Pioneers of Modern China is a fascinating book that paints a vivid picture of the unique cultural characteristics and behavior of the Chinese in the various provinces. Using leaders in the modern history of China, such as Sun Yat Sen, Chiang Kai Shek, Mao Zedong, Zhou Enlai, Deng Xiaoping, Jiang Zemin, Hu Jintao and Wen Jiabao as representatives, it offers an in-depth look into the psyche of the Chinese people. It also pays tribute to writers, painters and kungfu experts, who have helped to develop the country socially and artistically.

*World Scientific This proceedings consists of 162 selected papers presented at the 2nd Annual International Conference on Mechanics and Mechanical Engineering (MME2015), which was successfully held in Chengdu, China between December 25–27, 2015. MME2015 is one of the key international conferences in the fields of mechanics, mechanical engineering. It offers a great opportunity to bring together researchers and scholars around the globe to deliver the latest innovative research and the most recent developments in the field of Mechanics and Mechanical Engineering. MME2015 received over 400 submissions from about 600 laboratories, colleges and famous institutes. All the submissions have undergone double blind reviewed to assure the quality, reliability and validity of the results presented. These papers are arranged into 6 main chapters according to their research fields. These are: 1) Applied Mechanics 2) Mechanical Engineering and Manufacturing Technology 3) Material Science and Material Engineering 4) Automation and Control Engineering 5) Electrical Engineering 6) System Modelling and Simulation. This proceedings will be invaluable to academics and professionals interested in Mechanics and Mechanical Engineering.
